LUCIE TIGER UNVEILS HAUNTING SOUTHERN NOIR TALE WITH NEW SINGLE “HARVEST MOON”

Lucie Tiger returns with “Harvest Moon”, a brooding country-rock confession steeped in betrayal, mystery, and small-town shadows. Set against the storied backdrop of Muscle Shoals, Alabama, where the track was recorded at East Avalon Recorders, Lucie delivers a modern murder ballad that feels both timeless and fiercely original. With “Harvest Moon”, Lucie Tiger doesn’t just tell a story—she buries it under your skin.

“Harvest Moon” is out worldwide September 5. Do your ears a favour and wrap them around “Harvest Moon” 👉 https://ffm.to/lucietiger_harvestmoon

Anchored by smoky vocals, twang-laced guitar, and a rhythm section that simmers like Southern heat, “Harvest Moon” showcases Lucie Tiger at her most compelling: vulnerable, sharp-witted, and unafraid to walk the line between sin and salvation. Lucie shares:

“I’ve always been fascinated by Souther gothic stories—the ones where everyone has a secret and the river sees it all go down.” The opening line - their headstones read October 4 but my love for them died well before - was the first thing I came up with and we all thought let’s see where that opening line takes us. From there, the whole song just unfolded in twists and turns like a small-town rumour.”

@lucietigermusic #lucietiger #countrymusic #countryrock #newsinglealert #harvestmoon #aussiecountry #australiancountrymusic #crankitup #keepitcountry #playsomethingcountry #highoncountry #countrymusiclovers #peaceloveandcountrymusic

David Burton